Have you Included your Domain Name Registration in your IP Protection Plan Yet?

With the fast-paced movement towards online-trading, organizations nowadays exert huge effort in maintaining their online brand image. While managing your brand portfolio includes a wide range of aspects from social media to trademarks handling, many organizations overlook the importance of securing their business's domain name.

Domain names are similar to trademarks in that they provide essential tools for distinguishing one business from another on the web and avoiding confusion with other competitors in Internet search results. In that respect, domain names related to your brand and business could be subjected to infringement by other parties who aim at misleading customers, therefore, domain name protection is vital for business owners. Talal Abu-Ghazaleh Legal (TAG-Legal) is ready to assist in handling disputes and filing complaints against infringement of both gTLDs and ccTLDs domain names before ICANN accredited centers and local authorities.

We aim at providing you with the optimum protection of your IP rights, by delivering the most reliable, practical, cost and time efficient solutions without having to resort to the court system.
